Free Domestic and Sexual Violence Advice Line

Have you been affected by domestic and/ or sexual violence?
You are NOT alone. We believe.
We listen. We are here for you.

Women and Girls Network have been supporting survivors of domestic and sexual violence for over 30 years. Our Advice Line offers free and confidential information, advice and support for anyone in London, who self identifies as a woman (13 yr+), and has been affected by any form of domestic and/ or sexual violence at any time in their lives.

Our specialist team of advisors and caseworkers will offer you a safe space to explore your experience(s) of abuse, offer immediate information and advice about your options and will help you to access the support you need.

You can access the Advice Line for one off support and we can also link you into on-going specialist support such as:

- Practical, Advocacy & Casework support
- Counselling & Group work
- Refuge accommodation & Housing/ Homelessness support
- Legal advice (including Immigration Law, Family Law, Criminal law)

We are aware of the impact domestic and sexual violence may have on your life, and we realise it can be hard to pick up the phone for the first time.

When you call us, we will:

- Believe you
- Never judge you
- Treat you with respect
- Honour your wishes and never tell you what to do

The Advice Line is also open for professionals to access specialist advice on cases relating to domestic and/ or sexual violence, as well as advice on support options available for survivors (including accessing refuge accommodation).

We also provide support to friends and family of survivors, to help them understand how best to support survivors.

You can access the Advice Line anonymously. Advice Line calls are free and do not show on your phone bill. Our team speak several languages and can access phone interpreting. The Advice Line is accessible for Deaf or hard of hearing people via Text Relay.
